ROSH HASHANAH begins the Jewish new year. According to the ancient Hebrew calendar, the world was made 5,690 years ago, figures that agree substantially with the Christian idea as to the age of the world.

They do not, however, agree with scientific facts. But that need not disturb religious beliefs.

MEN have been on the earth, in various forms, for at least 1,000,000 years.

The earth itself is thousands of millions of years old.

MORE important, and most comforting, is the scientific statement that our earth will last, with the sun keeping it warm enough for human beings to enjoy themselves millions of centuries to come. At that time, doubtless, war will die out, also selfishness, poverty and injustice. But such progress cannot be hurried.

THE Canadian government bought a herd of 3,000 selected reindeer and will drive them from Kotzebue Sound in Arctic Alaska to the east side of the Mackenzie delta in Northwest Canada.

Driving giant herds to new pasture lands is old.

State Agents Arrest Woman In Wellsville

"DRY" HAULS MADE IN TWO RAIDS HERE

Liquor Seized at Wedding Party in Prez-zia Home.

TWO MEN FINED

Six Enforcement Officers Leave Lisbon After Clean-up.

Sheriff William J. Barlow and state dry agents who have been mopping up wet spots in the northern section of Columbiana county during the last week or 10 days, turned their attention to East Liverpool and Wellsville yesterday, making one arrest and two "dry" hauls.

Woman Faces Two Charges
Raiders interrupted a wedding celebration at the home of Mrs. Charles Trezzia, 1250 Commerce street, Wellsville, last night, where they seized a small quantity of liquor. Mrs. Trezzia, who was released on her own recognizance, will appear before Judge Lodge Riddle, at Lisbon, Monday, to answer charges of selling liquor filed by state agents. Her possession filed by the sheriff.

Two places in Second street, East Liverpool were searched by the raiders, but no liquor was found, the sheriff said.

Three plants of whiskey were found in a trap under the seat of an automobile in a blacksmith shop in Pershing avenue, Salem yesterday afternoon, raiders said. A suspect made his getaway. Six state agents and three deputies assisted Sheriff Barlow in yesterday's raids.

Collects $1,850 in Fines.
Fines totaling $1,850 were assessed and collected by Probate Judge Riddle yesterday on liquor charges. George Lamarco, Broadway, Wellsville, who was charged with a second offense of possessing liquor, was fined $1,200. About 165 gallons of wine and four gallons of whiskey were found at his home.

Alex Fratilla, Salem, who was nabbed in the first series of raids last week, withdrew his plea of not guilty and was fined $650. He was represented by Attorney Walter Beck.

Louis Julian, Salem, charged with liquor possession, was found guilty following trial. Attorney H. L. McCarthy filed a motion for a new trial and passing of sentence was deferred until the court rules upon the motion. Assistant prosecuting Attorney George Lafferty prosecuted the case.

Because of the welfare conference which Judge Riddle will attend at Dayton next week, trials of other alleged liquor offenders who are liberty on bond have been postponed.

State dry agents who have been stopping in Lisbon for the last week left for their homes today.

FISHING PARTY CATCHES 117

After spending three days fishing in Chesapeake bay, the Rev. R. C. Caulk, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal church; R. C. Edmonston, owner of the Travelers' hotel; William Hume, clerk of the hotel; and Charles O. Weaver, confectioner, have returned here.

Just a day or two ago they were followed by the results of their outing, 117 bass, trout and blue fish.

Passing through Washington, D. C., Baltimore and Annapolis, Md., they fished out of St. Michaels, Md., at a spot close to Tillman's island.

Olen H. Dawson, West Fifth street music dealer, is one of the active members of the Kiwanis club arranging the county "good will" tour by East Liverpool business men next Thursday. Dawson is chairman of the agriculture or closer relations with rural communities committee.

Plans for the organization of a G. O. P. club were laid at an enthusiastic meeting of the Republican central committee in the Municipal court room, Fourth and Market streets, last night.

Applications for membership are now being received by the central committee. The club will be open to all Republican voters.

Nearly 100 voters, including 17 of the 23 precinct committeemen and all but one of the nominees for municipal office at the November 5 election, attended the meeting. Talks were made by R. B. Stevenson, majority nominee; Samuel B. Burgess, nominee for president of council; William McGraw, nominee for city auditor; Harry Brokaw, candidate for municipal judge; and W. L. McClelland, nominee for first ward council.

Report of the finance committee was submitted by Attorney W. V. Stevenson, nominee for city solicitor. A. Earl Edwards, chairman of the headquarters committee, announced that headquarters would probably be opened next week. A report was also received from a speakers' committee.

Another meeting of the committee and party workers will be held next Friday night.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—(INS)—The Russian plane Land of the Soviets was forced down at Waterfall, Alaska, and its pilots are safe at Craig, Alaska, according to word received at the war department today from Craig.

Major Gen. George S. Gibbs, head of the Washington-Alaska Military Cable and Telegraph system, at Seattle, wired:

"Message at 2:00 p. m. Pacific standard time Oct. 4 from our operator at Craig, Alaska, states that two of the Soviet airplane fliers just came into his office in Craig, stating their plane was forced down at Waterfall, Alaska, 20 odd miles from Craig. Further details later."

MAN STABBED; WOMAN SOUGHT
MIDLAND, Pa., Oct. 5.—Thomas Stengle, 24, chipper for the Pittsburgh Crucible Steel company, was removed to the Rochester General hospital shortly before noon today, suffering from a knife wound in the chest, alleged to have been sustained in a quarrel at 310 Beaver avenue.

Police asked authorities of East Liverpool, Canton and Aliquippa to be on the lookout for Mrs. Beatrice Richardson, 22, also colored. Mrs. Lydia Franklin, colored, who occupies an apartment adjoining that of Mrs. Richardson, told police Stengle attempted to enter the Richardson apartment several times this morning. A few minutes later she heard an argument and as she opened the door Stengle staggered into the hall. He ran down stairs to the apartment of Mrs. Mattie Williams where he was found by Dr. J. A. Helfrich.

400 SCOUTS IN JAMBOREE AT WELLSVILLE

Rotary Club Sponsors Rally in Methodist Church.

PARADE IS HELD

Dinner Given in Honor of Birkenhead Visitors.

Approximately 400 Boy Scouts, representing troops in Salem, East Liverpool, Columbiana, Leetonia and Lisbon, attended a Columbiana county jamboree, sponsored by the Wellsville Rotary club, in the First Methodist Episcopal church, Wellsville, last night.

The affair was in honor of Keith McCutcheon, East Liverpool, and Jack Catlett and Frederick Banfield, Wellsville, who attended the international jamboree at Birkenhead, England, this summer. These three, with John Cakody and Charles Arms, Youngstown, scouts; C. E. Felton, county executive, and the Rev. Harold F. Post, pastor of the First Presbyterian church and a Wellsville scoutmaster, were guests of the Rotarians at a dinner in the Riverview hotel preceding the jamboree.

A parade, headed by the East Liverpool Boy Scout-American Legion drum and bugle corps, in which 400 lads, including a delegation of 42 from Midland marched, preceded the rally.

Scout Executive Felton, Lisbon, presided at the meeting. Addresses were made by C. W. Arnold, president of the Wellsville Rotary club; D. P. Morrison, chairman of the Wellsville Boy Scout organization; E. D. Haefner, Youngstown, scoutmaster of Troop No. 23, composed of Eastern Ohio scouts who made the trip to England. Haefner said that the eastern Ohio troop was the only one of the 27 making the trip abroad which had a prepared program.

Short talks were also made by McCutcheon, Catlett, Banfield, Cakody and Arms. Patriotic numbers were rendered, with Mrs. George Lowry at the organ. Two vocal selections were given by George B. Imbrie.

MAN HURT WHEN HIS AUTO SKIDS

Philip Murer, Youngstown, sustained minor injuries when his coupe skidded and went into a ditch near McCracken's Corners, Salem-Lisbon road, last night.

Murer was treated at the Salem City hospital. His automobile was badly damaged.

Automobile driven by Alfred Carlisle, Jordanville, Lisbon suburb, overturned on the Lisbon-Leetonia road last night, but Carlisle, the only occupant, escaped unhurt.

DAHLIA SOCIETY ENROLLS 12

Twelve new members were admitted to the East Liverpool Dahlia society at a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms in the Little building last night. Next session will be held in the McKinley school, Ambrose avenue, on Friday, November 1, when officers will be elected.

MISSION CHIEF HERE SATURDAY

The Rev. B. H. Pearson of Los Angeles, Calif., general superintendent of home mission work of the Free Methodist church, will preach tomorrow night in the Avondale street church. The Rev. Mr. Pearson has been engaged for the last five years in work among Mexican residents in California.

OHIO U. P. SYNOD LEADERS

Rev. L. J. Davison.

The Rev. L. J. Davison and the Rev. J. T. Vorhis, pastors of the First churches of East Liverpool and Lisbon, respectively, have been elected moderator and vice moderator of the Ohio Synod of the United Presbyterian denomination.

The Rev. Mr. Davison tomorrow will celebrate his twentieth wedding anniversary. From the standpoint of service he is the third oldest minister in East Liverpool. He came here in September, 1919, from the Mt. Washington United Presbyterian church of Pittsburgh. Mr. Vorhis is the father of two children, Dorothy, 6, and Edith, 4.

Rev. J. T. Vorhis.

Wayne, Sophomore at Westminster college, New Wilmington, Pa.; Jack, eighth grade student, and Bobby, in the second grade, and one daughter Miriam, high school senior.

The Rev. Mr. Vorhis is a native of southwestern Ohio. His first charge was in Los Angeles where he was located for four years. He then accepted a call to the Wayne Avenue U. P. church, Dayton, where he was located for two years. He came to Chester from the latter city last May. The Rev. Mr. Vorhis is the father of two children, Dorothy, 6, and Edith, 4.

CAPTAIN BUDWIG GETS AIR POST

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—(INS)—Captain Gilbert B. Budwig, of Cleveland, was today appointed director of aeronautics for the commerce department.

Budwig, who had been connected with the aeronautics section for several years, succeeds Major Clarence M. Young, who was appointed assistant secretary of commerce.

$5,000 FIRE IN STEEL CITY

MIDLAND, Pa., Oct. 5.—Fire caused by defective wiring, resulted in a loss of $5,000 early today to the drug store owned by Noah Bobrow, Fifth street and Midland avenue. Most of the damage was due to smoke and water.

The blaze was extinguished by the volunteer firemen answering the first alarm in 79 days.

Premier Pays Respects to Cabinet Chief

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—(INS)—Before leaving for a week-end in the Blue Ridge mountains, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain, today paid his respects to Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, Vice President Curtis and Chief Justice William Howard Taft, and appeared to enjoy doing it.

Statesman Meets Senators.
The labor statesman also met other members of the supreme court and a number of senators. He smiled amiably at the crowds of tourists and capitol employees who applauded him as he passed. The premier spent more than a half hour in the capitol.

MacDonald even consented to do a bit for the talking picture outfits, assisted by Vice President Curtis.

"We are very glad to welcome you and trust that you have an enjoyable visit," said the vice president.

"Thank you, I am very much obliged to you for your courtesy," answered the British premier.

A scheduled visit to the office of Speaker Longworth of the house was omitted because he is in Cincinnati at his home. The speaker is not expected to return before the prime minister leaves for Philadelphia next Thursday.

Premier Seeks Understanding.
By GEORGE R. HOLMES.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—(INS)—An understanding, not an alliance—friendly cooperation, not distrustful rivalry—and a mutual undertaking to compel peace in a war-weary world.

These, in his own words, are the motives that impelled J. Ramsay MacDonald, the prime minister of Great Britain, to shatter the traditions of a century and a half by crossing 3,000 miles of ocean under to sit down, friendly like, with the president of the United States and talk over the problems that contain the germs of international irritation.

Peace, first of all between Great Britain and the United States, but lastly and in its broader concept.

$17,750 VERDICT IN TRUCK WRECK

One of the largest personal injury verdicts ever returned in Columbiana county was awarded by a jury of seven women and five men in common pleas courts, Lisbon, yesterday afternoon, in the case of Ardia Rohrer, Leetonia, against the Erie railroad, the Cleveland and Mahoning Valley railroad, and the Nypeno railroad.

The award was $17,750. Rohrer, who was injured when a train struck his truck at the Washington street crossing in Leetonia, on July 7, 1928, sued for $75,000. He was represented by Howell, Roberts & Duncan of Cleveland, and Attorney Robert M. Brookes, of East Liverpool. Attorney W. B. Moore, Lisbon, assisted by a Youngstown law firm, appeared for the railroad companies.

FIVE YOUTHS HURT IN CRASH

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 5.—(INS)—Five youths were injured today, two of them seriously, when two automobiles in which they were riding, crashed in South Cleveland.

Edward Everett, 21, and Joseph Boone, 33, both of Cleveland, received fractured skulls. The other injured are Charles Redelson, 19, Sherwood McIntyre, 24, and Stanley Ukoric, 19, all of Cleveland.

RAIN FORECAST FOR NEXT WEEK

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—(INS)—Weather outlook for the period October 7 to 12, inclusive: Ohio Valley: A period of showers about Wednesday and again Friday or Saturday. Moderate temperatures followed by temperatures mostly about normal, except for a brief cool spell about Thursday.

To be Up-to-Date Means to be Up-to-Chrysler

When anything new is produced, there are always those who create and those who follow.

In the change to balloon tires, some makers asserted the new type would never succeed. Four-wheel brakes found some who disastrously supported the two-wheel design. And today, there are engineers who decry the Multi-Range Gear Shift and the Down-Draft carburetor.

Chrysler has never been among those who shun new things—if the new be better than the old.

The public acclaim for Chrysler, instead, has been based on Chrysler's pioneering or, ready acceptance of those new creations which have made motoring safer, more comfortable, surer and more economical.

To be always ahead of or abreast of the times, but never to experiment on the public is the real foundation of Chrysler success.

You who prefer the latest, the most advanced, the best, have made Chrysler the most copied car in the world. Because Chrysler has built the kind of cars you up-to-the-minute people want, you have given Chrysler the greatest success in the history of automobile building. We invite your most critical inspection.

Irons that Smooth Damp tissue paper without tearing

WE ARE always particularly pleased to have a visit from a home manager who is "fussy" about her ironing. We like to show her how we handle the ironing, and to hear her surprised exclamation, "Why this work is beautifully done!"

We have special equipment and methods for ironing even the most delicate articles. The metal portions are steam heated, because steam heated metal will not scorch. And these ironers are so delicate they will smooth damp tissue paper without tearing!

Ready For World Series

Football, bidding for first place in the hearts of sports lovers, will be shunted to a siding on the athletic railroad Tuesday as the champion baseball teams of the National and American leagues clash in the first game of the world series.

Everything is in readiness for the classic between Joe McCarthy's hustling Cubs and Connie Mack's famous Athletics, and betting odds indicate it is a toss-up in the selection of a favorite.

Wall Street, which seemingly fixes the quotations for persons who wish to wager on the outcome, looks with favor on the team which calls Shibe park its home, but supporters of the Braves seem to be willing to risk their all on the chances of the Chicagoans. The sport writers are busy telling their readers how good George Earnshaw, Bob Grove and Rube Walberg, of Philadelphia, and Guy Bush, Pat Malone and Charley Root, of the Braves, are. And at the same time they are not overlooking the ability of players like Cochran, Fox, Dykes, Bishop, Simmons, Miller, Hale and others of Mack's galaxy of stars, and Hornsby, Grimm, Cuyler, Wilson, Stephenson and English and other young men on the William Wrigley payroll.

Indicative of the interest in the forthcoming struggle of the baseball giants, more than 250,000 persons will storm the gates of the two parks if seven games are played, while millions of fans will watch newspaper scoreboards and bulletins or "listen in" as the radio depicts the story of the battle.

So East Liverpool and the rest of the country are patiently waiting for the umpire's command, "Play ball!"

Hazard in Car Stealing

One of the leading insurance companies of the country reports that 116,000 automobiles valued at $81,000,000 were stolen in the United States last year. These figures do not refer to cars taken from their parking places and driven for an hour or two by joyriders, but cars actually stolen for the purpose of making continued use of them or for the purpose of realizing valuable return from the selling of them.

These figures, without explanation, would indicate that automobile stealing is far more productive to the car thieves than it really is. However, the insurance company goes on with data showing that 85 per cent of all the cars stolen in 1928 were recovered, and thus the value of the cars not recovered was approximately only $12,000,000. Even a loss of $12,000,000 by automobile thefts might be taken to be a heavy one until the number of cars in use in the country is considered, when it will be seen to have been less than a dollar a car, which is rather a remarkable showing. In a word, it may be said that the danger of loss as the result of the stealing of automobiles has become almost negligible. As a matter of fact, the statistics offered show that, despite the yearly increase in the number of motor cars in use, the number of cars stolen is annually decreasing, while there has in the last few years been a marked increase in the number of cars recovered.

It is further shown that there is a distinct seasonal trend in car stealing, the peak being reached in the late fall and the low mark falling in the spring, when owners most appreciate their cars and take more precautions in guarding them than at any other time of the year.

When 85 per cent of all the cars taken are recovered, it goes to show that automobile stealing is productive of but a minimum percentage of reward and is at all times a hazardous enterprise; an enterprise, if we are to judge by the statistics offered, which is becoming more hazardous year by year.

Matter of Precedence

The average newspaper reader must feel that far too much space has been given in the past, and is still being given, to the place at table which Mrs. Dolly Gann is to occupy at functions as the official hostess of her brother, Vice President Curtis.

Word from Washington is to the effect that the battle for social precedence between Mrs. Gann and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, the wife of the speaker of the house, has been decided so far as White House functions are concerned in favor of the former; that Mrs. Gann, under ordinary circumstances will outrank all women save Mrs. Hoover, but that she will sit at Mr. Hoover's left at the coming dinner to Premier Ramsey MacDonald. That his hostess during the premier's American visit, Lady Isabella Howard, the wife of the British ambassador, may sit at the president's right, Vice President Curtis voluntarily waived the rights of his official hostess.

It was to have been hoped that the White House decision in the battle for precedence which for months has been waged by and between Mrs. Gann and Mrs. Longworth and those aligned with the latter, would settle the matter, but word from Washington is to the effect that the fight will be on, and that Mrs. Longworth and the other social leaders who refuse to recognize the right of precedence claimed in her behalf will not be present at social gatherings where Mrs. Gann holds a place of honor superior to those held by them.

The whole thing is bound to appear silly to the average citizen, and it may rightly be so regarded, but unfortunately the precedence business is a paramount issue in Washington social and official life.

Washington is not an exception to the rule, but Washington seemingly suffers more from it than any capital city on the face of the earth.

HASKIN LETTER DAILY

By Frederic J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 5.—A large percentage of American newspaper readers invariably look at the death list every day. Every editor or publisher who has tried the experiment of leaving out this vital information, speedily learns from the letters of protest he receives that, to many persons, leaving the death list out of the daily paper is like leaving Hamlet out of the play. Many motives prompt the death list reader. The chief one, obviously, is a desire to learn of the demise of friends and acquaintances.

Relatively few such readers, however, give a thought to the industry which has sprung up in modern times as the necessary result of the steady procession of mankind to the grave—the manufacture of caskets, coffins, burial cases and morticians' goods. Those closely associated with one who has died think little of the money side of death but business men who serve the peoples' needs at such times must think of it and the bureau of the census, too, must take the industry into consideration in assembling its statistical data.

The bureau has just made available the figures on its census of the casket industry for 1927 and it is shown that for the United States the industry did a business in the paraphernalia of morticians amounting to $74,890,850. This figure relates merely to the manufactured articles used in connection with a funeral. This particular census compilation does not take into consideration at all the professional fees charged by undertakers. The total of such fees would be several times the amount of the cost of the manufactured articles used.

From the earliest times, men have buried their dead with ceremony of some sort and usually have, in some manner, protected the remains of the deceased person. Practices have varied in different countries and at different eras. The modern method of burial probably is, on the whole, simpler and less expensive than it was at various times many centuries ago.

The largest number of caskets and coffins used are wooden ones, some metal-lined, others merely lined with plush; but decently and handsomely lined. The value of these in the single year 1927 was $43,217,953. Then come the all metal caskets which, in 1927, were valued at $10,417,881. There are more elaborate and costly affairs. Inventions have been made whereby they may be sealed in such a way that the body will not be disturbed by any action of elements. They are airtight and watertight and will remain so indefinitely. Then there is a lesser group of specially made caskets which were valued at $188,988 in 1927. These include caskets made of special composition materials to meet the desires of survivors or perhaps of the deceased himself.

So eager are the survivors of dead persons to have friends or relatives brought home from distant places to lie at rest that almost half the trains which run carry dead passengers. The cost of shipping cases for caskets in 1927 was $4,176,139. An increasing number of persons, nowadays, are buried in vaults; either family vaults or community vaults. Special metal cases are constructed for these and the cost of such cases in 1927 was $4,662,328.

Even the dead must be clothed and it is a curious fact that many a man has been placed in his casket in better and more costly clothes than ever he wore in life. In 1927, $3,728,529 was expended upon funeral garments for the dead. There are various other items which go to make up the total of $74,890,850 cost of this funeral paraphernalia, all manufactured goods.

But viewing the industry abstractly, it is recognized that the living benefit. In 1927 there were 340 establishments in the United States engaged in the manufacture of these various apparels and they gave employment to 11,665 persons to whom wages aggregating $14,420,598 were paid. The sellers of materials which went into these manufactures received $33,327,469 for their wares. These figures are wholly exclusive of the sums earned by undertakers and their employees. In the period from 1919 to 1927 the wages of the workers in the casket and allied industries were increased more than 25 per cent.

Questions and Answers.

By Frederic J. Haskin.

Q. What was the original title of Francis Scott Key's famous composition, The Star Spangled Banner? H. T.

A. It was first called, The Defence of Fort M'Henry.

Q. What is the cause of the corduroy effect on gravel roads? N. T.

A. The corduroy effect on gravel roads is caused by cars hitting a stone or hard place in the road and starting the vibration of a spring. This causes harmonic hammering of the machine which in turn forms the cross ribs in the road. On hillside these are sometimes caused by creeping of the surface of the roadbed.

Q. Please name some counties in Virginia named after Revolutionary patriots. W. O.

A. Among the counties in Virginia so named are: Bland, Campbell, Carroll, Clarke, Franklin, Greene, Matthews, Montgomery, Pulaski, Russell and Warren.

Q. Are there many glider organizations in Germany? G. G.

A. In Germany there are approximately 200 glider clubs and in 1928 about ten thousand glides and flights were made. Gliding instruction in that country is open to any schoolboy of fourteen years or over and instruction is free.

Q. Is there a monument to the man who built Eiffel Tower? B. F. K.

Turning Back Pages of Memory

By Frederic J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 5.—A large percentage of American newspaper readers invariably look at the death list every day. Every editor or publisher who has tried the experiment of leaving out this vital information, speedily learns from the letters of protest he receives that, to many persons, leaving the death list out of the daily paper is like leaving Hamlet out of the play. Many motives prompt the death list reader. The chief one, obviously, is a desire to learn of the demise of friends and acquaintances.

Relatively few such readers, however, give a thought to the industry which has sprung up in modern times as the necessary result of the steady procession of mankind to the grave—the manufacture of caskets, coffins, burial cases and morticians' goods. Those closely associated with one who has died think little of the money side of death but business men who serve the peoples' needs at such times must think of it and the bureau of the census, too, must take the industry into consideration in assembling its statistical data.

The bureau has just made available the figures on its census of the casket industry for 1927 and it is shown that for the United States the industry did a business in the paraphernalia of morticians amounting to $74,890,850. This figure relates merely to the manufactured articles used in connection with a funeral. This particular census compilation does not take into consideration at all the professional fees charged by undertakers. The total of such fees would be several times the amount of the cost of the manufactured articles used.

From the earliest times, men have buried their dead with ceremony of some sort and usually have, in some manner, protected the remains of the deceased person. Practices have varied in different countries and at different eras. The modern method of burial probably is, on the whole, simpler and less expensive than it was at various times many centuries ago.

The largest number of caskets and coffins used are wooden ones, some metal-lined, others merely lined with plush; but decently and handsomely lined. The value of these in the single year 1927 was $43,217,953. Then come the all metal caskets which, in 1927, were valued at $10,417,881. There are more elaborate and costly affairs. Inventions have been made whereby they may be sealed in such a way that the body will not be disturbed by any action of elements. They are airtight and watertight and will remain so indefinitely. Then there is a lesser group of specially made caskets which were valued at $188,988 in 1927. These include caskets made of special composition materials to meet the desires of survivors or perhaps of the deceased himself.

So eager are the survivors of dead persons to have friends or relatives brought home from distant places to lie at rest that almost half the trains which run carry dead passengers. The cost of shipping cases for caskets in 1927 was $4,176,139. An increasing number of persons, nowadays, are buried in vaults; either family vaults or community vaults. Special metal cases are constructed for these and the cost of such cases in 1927 was $4,662,328.

Even the dead must be clothed and it is a curious fact that many a man has been placed in his casket in better and more costly clothes than ever he wore in life. In 1927, $3,728,529 was expended upon funeral garments for the dead. There are various other items which go to make up the total of $74,890,850 cost of this funeral paraphernalia, all manufactured goods.

But viewing the industry abstractly, it is recognized that the living benefit. In 1927 there were 340 establishments in the United States engaged in the manufacture of these various apparels and they gave employment to 11,665 persons to whom wages aggregating $14,420,598 were paid. The sellers of materials which went into these manufactures received $33,327,469 for their wares. These figures are wholly exclusive of the sums earned by undertakers and their employees. In the period from 1919 to 1927 the wages of the workers in the casket and allied industries were increased more than 25 per cent.

Questions and Answers.

Q. What was the original title of Francis Scott Key's famous composition, The Star Spangled Banner? H. T.

A. It was first called, The Defence of Fort M'Henry.

Q. What is the cause of the corduroy effect on gravel roads? N. T.

A. The corduroy effect on gravel roads is caused by cars hitting a stone or hard place in the road and starting the vibration of a spring. This causes harmonic hammering of the machine which in turn forms the cross ribs in the road. On hillside these are sometimes caused by creeping of the surface of the roadbed.

Q. Please name some counties in Virginia named after Revolutionary patriots. W. O.

A. Among the counties in Virginia so named are: Bland, Campbell, Carroll, Clarke, Franklin, Greene, Matthews, Montgomery, Pulaski, Russell and Warren.

Q. Are there many glider organizations in Germany? G. G.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Horseback riding in New York touched a new peak of popularity this year. Riding academies in Manhattan and Brooklyn had long waiting lists and bridle paths bristled with spirited mounts. Two millionaires sent far off Arabia for blooded steeds.

Central Park is the metropolitan riding mecca, and around tea time in the thicket of hotels in the Plaza fountain zone, costumed riders are in profusion. Ocean Park, in Brooklyn, and Van Cortlandt Park in the Bronx also have their steady stream of gallopers.

The riding begins at 5 a. m. Most of these enthusiasts who want to avoid the crush which sets in between 7 and 10 a. m. Among those who may be seen at dawn on caroling chargers are famous surgeons, stage stars, novelists, editors, merchant princes and foreign diplomats.

Wall Street, too, finds a great relaxation in swinging around the circuit several times before braving the shifting fortunes of the day. Clubmen who used to hurry to clubs for Scotch and sodas in the late afternoon now slip into butterbean pants and dash hell for leather about the park.

While the female riders are mostly young girls, there are a number of sedate, long-skirted women sitting primly in side saddles. And there are any number of children who seem as much at home horseback as little Miss Tomahawk Mix.

Fine saddle horses are becoming more and more a rare luxury. They range in price from $400 to $4,000, and their upkeep in fashionable sections is comparable to the maintenance of an expensive automobile. Three shops deal exclusively in outfitting riders.

Most riding instructors are Englishmen with drawing Mayfair accents. Many are aristocrats of impoverished families who saw America as the promised land, and failing on loan days, commercialized their riding skill.

One of Ye Olde English Inns in the 50's, featuring dark panelings, racks of pewter tankards, candle prisms and candlestick brass lanterns, has become a rendezvous for a group of young men flowering with literary ambitions. To heighten the atmosphere, the proprietress lists writing names on the menus—pineapple fritter, a la Smolair Lewis, steak Mouskron, said Dorothy Parker and a dessert has become Hergeshelmer toasts.

A big New York jewel robbery chase has suddenly been called off with a shoddy do Maupassant twist. The husband, after spending $25,000 with private detectives, learns missing gems are in a southern city pawn shop—pledged by a gigolo to whom they were "loaned" by the wife. Ugh!

Another sub rosa story concerns a "Parisian hair dresser" with an elaborate salon. Fifteen years ago he conducted a barber shop on Second avenue patronized by Gyp the Blood, Dago Frank, Lefty Louie and Whitney Lewis, notorious gangsters. He has never been out of New York.

I am touched by a struggling writer who in a letter admits: "So far I have only sold a couple of those kee-hee cracks to the funny papers."

And still it is pretty difficult to squeeze out even a crocodile tear for the literary novice these flushed times. In the last ten months eight young men and women under 25 not only finished first novels but all were immediately published.

Nor is anything more difficult than to persuade a writer to give up his ambitions and turn to something else. One might as well ask Parsifal to give up the Holy Grail. I got that one out of a book. Such advice is dangerous, too. A featured writer in a certain magazine is one of the editor catalogued six years ago as impossible. He has three successful novels and a play to his credit since.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention is Worth a Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Many questions come into the mind of a young mother. She spends a lot of time wishing there were somebody at hand to answer a lot of them. I'm doing the best I can to anticipate her wishes, because to serve a mother, to my mind, is the greatest privilege that can come to a man.

How much and when and how should a baby sleep? In the first place, let it be understood that the baby must have its own bed or cot. Under no circumstances should it sleep with the mother.

As a matter of fact, it is the ideal arrangement to have every child in infancy or at any other age, sleep by itself. Good health and good habits are promoted by individual beds.

One reason why the infant should not sleep with the mother, is to avoid the temptation of too frequent nursing. Regularity in the feedings and sufficiently long periods between them, is important if digestion is to be kept good.

If there is no other sleeping arrangement in your household for the baby, get a big clothes basket. This makes a fine bed.

However, the youngster must have its own special bed for several years. On this account, it is good practice to buy a little iron bed, with sides that can be put up and down. If it has good practical casters, the cot can be moved about as desired.

The crib bed will have a soft bottom mattress. This can be covered with a specially made rubber sheet. If there are two such sheets, the extra one can be washed, dried and aired. Great care should be used to keep these sheets sweet and clean. Their use protects the mattress.

A newborn and healthy baby will sleep at least 21 hours out of the 24. Even at six months of age it will sleep two-thirds of the time.

After the feeding, place the youngster in its bed. Let it kick and squirm all it likes. Leave it alone—don't fuss with it. Don't rock it or carry it about.

Bear in mind that a tiny baby needs fresh air just as grown-ups do. It is bad practice to place the baby's bed in an out-of-the-way corner, away from air. For health and growth an abundance of oxygen is essential.

Mother must have her rest, too. She needs unbroken sleep. After the baby is 10 or 12 weeks old, there need be no feeding between 10 o'clock and 6 the next morning. This will give mother and babe eight hours of good sleep. Some babies can go longer than this and thrive perfectly.

Sleep is one of the great factors in the child's development. Do all you can to promote it.

Keep the Autocrat in Panama.

The American effort in Panama, which changed the area adjoining the canal from one of the worst fever spots in the world to one of the most beautiful places known to man, was a herculean achievement which to be maintained has required an equally herculean vigilance. Every pall of water is a potential breeding place for malaria, and every imperiously constructed shack is a possible source of bubonic plague. Moreover, the population in the zone and in Panama City, which adjoins the zone, is very mixed, containing representatives of almost every race in the world, and has scant understanding of the importance of sanitation.

If the Canal Zone is to be fit for human habitation, the health regulations must be obeyed. There can simply be no argument on that point. This means that the health officer must have absolutely dictatorial powers. If he finds a pall of water without a cover he now fines the guilty housewife $10, and she has no appeal to any court. If a house is not of the proper "ratproof" construction, the doctor can have the house torn down, and no one can say him nay. If the proudest ocean liner or the biggest foreign battleship ties up at a Canal Zone wharf and neglects to put galvanized iron "rat guards" on its hawseers, the captain of the vessel must pay a large fine and no amount of argument will help him.

This is a good system, which has made the Canal Zone a model of the world over. One of the doctors charged with enforcing it has been accused of inefficiency, and the war department is going to investigate the charges. It is to be hoped that when the Assistant Secretary of War, Mr. Hurley, makes his investigation he will distinguish between the individual who happens to be health officer and the system under which that officer is supposed to operate. He may be urged to annul some of the powers which the health officers in Panama now have. It would be most unfortunate if he took such advice. Let him take what action he pleases with regard to the individual doctor, but let him remember that without autocratic control it is well nigh impossible to keep the zone as healthful as it certainly ought to be.—New York Herald-Tribune.

American Shipping.
 The vital need of an adequate merchant marine to carry a proper share of American commerce has been drummed into the ears of the public ever since the World War. Gradually the people have become more "ship-minded" and have awakened to the need. More and more American capital has been invested in shipping. Shipbuilding has been on the upgrade. A lessening of American interest in shipping or an undercurrent of opposition to the further development of the American merchant marine, should it grow out of the investigation now being conducted by the senate into certain activities of a hired lobbyist and some of the ship-building companies, would be a real misfortune. The merchant marine has fought an uphill battle. It has had opposition even in American quarters, because of the large sums of American capital invested in foreign shipping, and because there has been a cult in this country which holds that it should prefer other nations to have its carrying trade.

Congress finally has put through legislation, the Jones-White merchant marine act, which is providing an assistance to American shipping, as it was intended to do. Before such legislation was possible, a real campaign of education was required regarding the need of American shipping, under the American flag, both for the purpose of carrying American commerce and as an auxiliary to the national defense. The event of the war. Certain officials of the ship-building companies now under investigation have testified that large sums of money were expended by them in such a campaign of education. Economists, important members of university faculties, engineers were among those employed to aid in the campaign of education and to develop plans for American shipping. There has been no evidence that money was expended in an improper way to influence votes in congress on legislation.

This country could well afford to build a merchant marine through government agency and maintain it, if there were no other way of providing an American merchant marine. But the American idea has always been to give as free rein as possible to private initiative and to keep the government out of business. The effort has been, therefore, to bring about the development of a privately owned and privately operated merchant marine. This has been the avowed purpose of congress in its legislative acts. It has been the purpose of the Coolidge administration and of the present administration. It is to that end that the United States shipping board has labored. Any effort, growing out of the present senate investigation, to place a stumbling block in the way of merchant shipping advance in this country would be a serious mistake. It has been charged that three American shipbuilding companies employed William B. Shearer to lobby at the Geneva naval limitation conference in 1927 and to seek in various ways to create an ill feeling between this country and Britain to the end that there should be no agreement at the conference. If they did so, they should be censured in the strongest terms. The law, perhaps, cannot reach them. Public opinion doubtless will do so. The American people will back an agreement for limitation of naval armament, provided the agreement includes parity in naval strength with Great Britain. They will not agree to less. But the charge against Shearer and the shipbuilders is to the effect that they sought to prevent any agreement at all, with or without such parity.

Whatever comes of the present senate inquiry, it will be devoutly hoped by Americans who have American interests at heart that it will not retard the development of the merchant marine.—Washington Star.

Hand-picked prodigies, companionate marriages and beauty treatments often fall short of expectations.—The Sioux City Tribune.

Ready For World Series

Football, bidding for first place in the hearts of sports lovers, will be shunted to a siding on the athletic railroad Tuesday as the champion baseball teams of the National and American leagues clash in the first game of the world series.

Everything is in readiness for the classic between Joe McCarthy's hustling Cubs and Connie Mack's famous Athletics, and betting odds indicate it is a toss-up in the selection of a favorite.

Wall Street, which seemingly fixes the quotations for persons who wish to wager on the outcome, looks with favor on the team which calls Shibe park its home, but supporters of the Brains seem to be willing to risk their all on the chances of the Chicagoans. The sport writers are busy telling their readers how good George Earnshaw, Bob Grove and Rube Walberg, of Philadelphia, and Guy Bush, Pat Malone and Charley Routh, of the Brains, are. And at the same time they are not overlooking the ability of players like Cochran, Foxx, Dykes, Bishop, Simmons, Miller, Hale and others of Mack's galaxy of stars, and Hornsby, Grimm, Cuyler, Wilson, Stephenson and English and other young men on the William Wrigley payroll.

Indicative of the interest in the forthcoming struggle of the baseball giants, more than 250,000 persons will storm the gates of the two parks if seven games are played, while millions of fans will watch newspaper scoreboards and bulletins or "listen in" as the radio depicts the story of the battle.

So East Liverpool and the rest of the country are patiently waiting for the umpire's command, "Play ball!"

Hazard in Car Stealing

One of the leading insurance companies of the country reports that 116,000 automobiles valued at $81,000,000 were stolen in the United States last year. These figures do not refer to cars taken from their parking places and driven for an hour or two by joyriders, but cars actually stolen for the purpose of making continued use of them or for the purpose of realizing valuable return from the selling of them.

These figures, without explanation, would indicate that automobile stealing is far more productive to the car thieves than it really is. However, the insurance company goes on with data showing that 85 per cent of all the cars stolen in 1928 were recovered, and thus the value of the cars not recovered was approximately only $12,000,000. Even a loss of $12,000,000 by automobile thefts might be taken to be a heavy one until the number of cars in use in the country is considered, when it will be seen to have been less than a dollar a car, which is rather a remarkable showing. In a word, it may be said that the danger of loss as the result of the stealing of automobiles has become almost negligible. As a matter of fact, the statistics offered show that, despite the yearly increase in the number of motor cars in use, the number of cars stolen is annually decreasing, while there has in the last few years been a marked increase in the number of cars recovered.

It is further shown that there is a distinct seasonal trend in car stealing, the peak being reached in the late fall and the low mark falling in the spring, when owners most appreciate their cars and take more precautions in guarding them than at any other time of the year.

When 85 per cent of all the cars taken are recovered, it goes to show that automobile stealing is productive of but a minimum percentage of reward and is at all times a hazardous enterprise; an enterprise, if we are to judge by the statistics offered, which is becoming more hazardous year by year.

Matter of Precedence

The average newspaper reader must feel that far too much space has been given in the past, and is still being given, to the place at table which Mrs. Dolly Gann is to occupy at functions as the official hostess of her brother, Vice President Curtis.

Word from Washington is to the effect that the battle for social precedence between Mrs. Gann and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, the wife of the speaker of the house, has been decided so far as White House functions are concerned in favor of the former; that Mrs. Gann, under ordinary circumstances will outrank all women save Mrs. Hoover, but that she will sit at Mr. Hoover's left at the coming dinner to Premier Ramsey MacDonald. That his hostess during the premier's American visit, Lady Isabella Howard, the wife of the British ambassador, may sit at the president's right, Vice President Curtis voluntarily waived the rights of his official hostess.

It was to have been hoped that the White House decision in the battle for precedence which for months has been waged by and between Mrs. Gann and Mrs. Longworth and those aligned with the latter, would settle the matter, but word from Washington is to the effect that the fight will be on, and that Mrs. Longworth and the other social leaders who refuse to recognize the right of precedence claimed in her behalf will not be present at social gatherings where Mrs. Gann holds a place of honor superior to those held by them.

The whole thing is bound to appear silly to the average citizen, and it may rightly be so regarded, but unfortunately the precedence business is a paramount issue in Washington social and official life.

Washington is not an exception to the rule, but Washington seemingly suffers more from it than any capital city on the face of the earth.

HASKIN LETTER DAILY

By Frederic J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 5.—A large percentage of American newspaper readers invariably look at the death list every day. Every editor or publisher who has tried the experiment of leaving out this vital information, speedily learns from the letters of protest he receives that, to many persons, leaving the death list out of the daily paper is like leaving Hamlet out of the play. Many motives prompt the death list reader. The chief one, obviously, is a desire to learn of the demise of friends and acquaintances.

Relatively few such readers, however, give a thought to the industry which has sprung up in modern times as the necessary result of the steady procession of mankind to the grave—the manufacture of caskets, coffins, burial cases and morticians' goods. Those closely associated with one who has died think little of the money side of death but business men who serve the peoples' needs at such times must think of it and the bureau of the census, too, must take the industry into consideration in assembling its statistical data.

The bureau has just made available the figures on its census of the casket industry for 1927 and it is shown that for the United States the industry did a business in the paraphernalia of morticians amounting to $74,890,850. This figure relates merely to the manufactured articles used in connection with a funeral. This particular census compilation does not take into consideration at all the professional fees charged by undertakers. The total of such fees would be several times the amount of the cost of the manufactured articles used.

From the earliest times, men have buried their dead with ceremony of some sort and usually have, in some manner, protected the remains of the deceased person. Practices have varied in different countries and at different eras. The modern method of burial probably is, on the whole, simpler and less expensive than it was at various times many centuries ago.

The largest number of caskets and coffins used are wooden ones, some metal-lined, others merely lined with plush; but decently and handsomely lined. The value of these in the single year 1927 was $43,217,953. Then come the all metal caskets which, in 1927, were valued at $10,417,881. These are more elaborate and costly affairs. Inventions have been made whereby they may be sealed in such a way that the body will not be disturbed by any action of elements. They are airtight and watertight and will remain so indefinitely. Then there is a lesser group of specially made caskets which were valued at $188,988 in 1927. These include caskets made of special composition materials to meet the desires of survivors or perhaps of the deceased himself.

So eager are the survivors of dead persons to have friends or relatives brought home from distant places to lie at rest that almost half the trains which run carry dead passengers. The cost of shipping cases for caskets in 1927 was $4,176,139. An increasing number of persons, nowadays, are buried in vaults; either family vaults or community vaults. Special metal cases are constructed for these and the cost of such cases in 1927 was $4,662,328.

Even the dead must be clothed and it is a curious fact that many a man has been placed in his casket in better and more costly clothes than ever he wore in life. In 1927, $3,728,529 was expended upon funeral garments for the dead. There are various other items which go to make up the total of $74,890,850 cost of this funeral paraphernalia, all manufactured goods.

But, viewing the industry abstractly, it is recognized that the living benefit. In 1927 there were 340 establishments in the United States engaged in the manufacture of these various appearances and they gave employment to 11,665 persons to whom wages aggregating $14,420,598 were paid. The sellers of materials which went into these manufactures received $33,327,469 for their wares. These figures are wholly exclusive of the sums earned by undertakers and their employees. In the period from 1915 to 1927 the wages of the workers in the casket and allied industries were increased more than 25 per cent.

Questions and Answers.

By Frederic J. Haskin.

Q. What was the original title of Francis Scott Key's famous composition, The Star Spangled Banner? H. T.

A. It was first called, The Defence of Fort M'Henry.

Q. What is the cause of the cordary effect on gravel roads? N. T.

A. The cordary effect on gravel roads is caused by cars hitting a stone or hard place in the road and starting the vibration of a spring. This causes harmonic hammering of the machine which in turn forms the cross ruts in the road. On hillside there are sometimes caused by creeping of the surface of the roadbed.

Q. Please name some counties in Virginia named after Revolutionary patriots. W. O.

A. Among the counties in Virginia so named are: Bland, Campbell, Carroll, Clarke, Franklin, Greene, Matthews, Montgomery, Patrick, Russell and Warren.

Q. Are there many glider organizations in Germany? G. G.

A. In Germany there are approximately 200 glider clubs and in 1928 about ten thousand glides and flights were made. Gliding instruction in that country is open to any schoolboy of fourteen years or over and instruction is free.

Q. Is there a monument to the man who built Eiffel Tower? B. F. K.

A. Recently in the Champs de Mars, in Paris, a bust surmounting a white stone shaft was unveiled in memory of Gustave Eiffel, 1832-1923. It was in 1886 that Eiffel undertook the construction of the 984 foot tower that bears his name today.

Q. Who originated the saying, "Nothing succeeds like success"? K. C. I.

A. The words were used in reference to the first operation under ether performed by Dr. John Collins Warren at the Massachusetts General Hospital on Oct. 16, 1849.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Horseback riding in New York touched a new peak of popularity this year. Riding academies in Manhattan and Brooklyn had long waiting lists and bridle paths bristled with spirited mounts. Two millionaires sent to far off Arabia for blooded steeds.

Central Park is the metropolitan riding mecca, and around tea time in the thickets of herbs in the Plaza fountain zone, costumed riders are in profusion. Ocean Park, in Brooklyn and Van Cortlandt Park in the Bronx also have their steady stream of gallopers.

The riding begins at 5 a. m. Most of these enthusiasts who want to avoid the crush which sets in between 7 and 10 a. m. Among those who may be seen at dawn on caroling chargers are famous surgeons, stage stars, novelists, editors, merchant princes and foreign diplomats.

Wall Street, too, finds a great relaxation in swinging around the circuit several times before braving the shifting fortunes of the day. Clubmen who used to hurry to clubs for Scotch and soda in the late afternoon now slip into butterbean pants and dash hell for leather about the park.

While the female riders are mostly young girls, there are a number of sedate, long-skirted women sitting primly in side saddles. And there are any number of children who seem as much at home horseback as little Miss Tommasino Mix.

Fine saddle horses are becoming more and more a rare luxury. They range in price from $400 to $4,500, and their upkeep in fashionable sections is comparable to the maintenance of an expensive automobile. Three shops deal exclusively in outfitting riders.

Most riding instructors are Englishmen with drawing Mayfair accents. Many are aristocrats of impoverished families who saw America as the promised land, and falling on lean days, commercialized their riding skill.

One of Ye Olde English Inns in the 50's, featuring dark panelings, racks of pewter tankards, candle prints and candlelit brass lanterns, has become a rendezvous for a group of young men flowering with literary ambitions. To heighten the atmosphere, the proprietress lists writing names on the menus—pineapple fritter a la Sinclair Lewis, steak Menckens, salad Dorothy Parker and a desert has become Herreshimer toasts.

A big New York jewel robbery chase has suddenly been called off with a shuddery do Maupassant twist. The husband, after spending $25,000 with private detectives, learns missing gems are in a southern city pawn shop—pledged by a rigoletto to whom they were "loaned" by the wife. Ugh!

Another sub rosa story concerns a "Parisian hair dresser" with an elaborate salon. Fifteen years ago he conducted a barber shop on Second avenue patronized by Gyp the Blood, Dago Frank, Lefty Louie and Whitney Lewis, notorious gangsters. He has never been out of New York.

I am touched by a struggling young writer who in a letter admits: "So far I have only sold a couple of those beshe cracks to the funny papers."

And still it is pretty difficult to squeeze out even a crocodile tear for the literary novice these flushed times. In the last ten months eight young men and women under 25 not only finished first novels but all were immediately published.

Nor is anything more difficult than to persuade a writer to give up his ambitions and turn to something else. One might as well ask Parsifal to give up the Holy Grail I got that one out of a book. Such advice is dangerous, too. A featured writer in a certain magazine is one the editor catalogued six years ago as impossible. He has three successful novels and a play to his credit since.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention is Worth a Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Many questions come into the mind of a young mother who spends a lot of time wishing there were somebody at hand to answer a lot of them. I'm doing the best I can to anticipate her wishes, because to serve a mother, to my mind, is the greatest privilege that can come to a man.

How much and when and how should a baby sleep?

In the first place, let it be understood that the baby must have its own bed or cot. Under no circumstances should it sleep with the mother.

As a matter of fact, it is the ideal arrangement to have every child, sleep in infancy or at any other age, sleep by itself. Good health and good habits are promoted by individual beds.

One reason why the infant should not sleep with the mother, is to avoid the temptation of too frequent nursing. Regularity in the feedings and sufficiently long periods between them, is important if digestion is to be kept good.

If there is no other sleeping arrangement in your household for the baby, get a big clothes basket. This makes a fine bed.

However, the youngster must have its own special bed for several years. On this account, it is good practice to buy a little iron bed, with sides that can be put up and down. If it has good practical casters, the cot can be moved about as desired.

The crib bed will have a soft bed firm mattress. This can be covered with a specially made rubber sheet. If there are two such sheets, the extra one can be washed, dried and aired. Great care should be used to keep these sheets sweet and clean. Their use protects the mattress.

A newborn and healthy baby will sleep at least 21 hours out of the 24. Even at six months of age it will sleep two-thirds of the time.

After the feeding, place the youngster in its bed. Let it kick and squirm all it likes. Leave it alone—don't fuss with it. Don't rock it or carry it about.

Bear in mind that a tiny baby needs fresh air just as grown-ups do. It is bad practice to place the baby's bed in an out-of-the-way corner, away from air. For health and growth an abundance of oxygen is essential.

Mother must have her rest, too. She needs unbroken sleep. After the baby is 10 or 12 weeks old, there need be no feeding between 10 o'clock and 6 the next morning. This will give mother and babe eight hours of good sleep. Some babies can go longer than this and thrive perfectly.

Sleep is one of the great factors in the child's development. Do all you can to promote it.

Other Editors Say

Keep the Autocrat in Panama.

The American effort in Panama, which changed the area adjoining the canal from one of the worst fever spots in the world to one of the most healthful places known to man, was a herculean achievement which to be maintained has required an equally herculean vigilance. Every pall of water is a potential breeding place for malaria, and every improperly constructed shack is a possible source of bubonic plague. Moreover, the population in the zone and in Panama City, which adjoins the zone, is very mixed, containing representatives of almost every race in the world, and has scant understanding of the importance of sanitation.

If the Canal Zone is to be fit for human habitation, the health regulations must be obeyed. There can simply be no argument on that point. This means that the health officer must have absolutely dictatorial powers. If he finds a pall of water without a cover, he now fines the guilty housewife $10, and she has no appeal to any court. If a house is not of the proper "ratproof" construction, the doctor can have the house torn down, and no one can say him nay. If the proudest ocean liner or the biggest foreign battleship lies up at a Canal Zone wharf and neglects to put galvanized iron "rat guards" on its hawseers, the captain of the vessel must pay a large fine and no amount of argument will help him.

This is a good system, which has made the Canal Zone a model of the world over. One of the doctors charged with enforcing it has been accused of inefficiency, and the war department is going to investigate the charges. It is to be hoped that when the Assistant Secretary of War, Mr. Hurley, makes his investigation he will distinguish between the individual who happens to be health officer and the system under which that officer is supposed to operate. He may be urged to annul some of the powers which the health officers in Panama now have. It would be most unfortunate if he took such advice. Let him take what action he pleases with regard to the individual doctor, but let him remember that without autocratic control it is well nigh impossible to keep the zone as healthful as it certainly ought to be.—New York Herald-Tribune.

American Shipping.

The vital need of an adequate merchant marine to carry a proper share of American commerce has been drummed into the ears of the public ever since the World War. Gradually the people have become more "ship-minded" and have awakened to the need. More and more American capital has been invested in shipping. Shipbuilding has been on the upgrade. A lessening of American interest in shipping or an undercurrent of opposition to the further development of the American merchant marine, should it grow out of the investigation now being conducted by the senate into certain activities of a hired lobbyist and some of the ship-building companies, would be a real misfortune. The merchant marine has fought an uphill battle. It has had opposition even in American quarters, because of the large sums of American capital invested in foreign shipping, and because there has been a cult in this country which holds that it should permit other nations to have its carrying trade.

Congress finally has put through legislation, the Jones-White merchant marine act, which is proving an assistance to American shipping, as it was intended to do. Before such legislation was possible, a real campaign of education was required regarding the need of American shipping, under the American flag, both for the purpose of carrying American commerce and as an auxiliary to the national defense in the event of war. Certain officials of the shipbuilding companies now under investigation have testified that large sums of money were expended by them in such a campaign of education. Economists, important members of university faculties, engineers were among those employed to aid in the campaign of education and to develop plans for American shipping. There has been no evidence that money was expended in an improper way to influence votes in congress on legislation.

This country could well afford to build a merchant marine through government agency and maintain it, if there were no other way of providing an American merchant marine. But the American idea has always been to give as free rein as possible to private initiative and to keep the government out of business. The effort has been, therefore, to bring about the development of a privately owned and privately operated merchant marine. This has been the avowed purpose of congress in its legislative acts. It has been the purpose of the Coolidge administration and of the present administration. It is to that end that the United States shipping board has labored.

Any effort, growing out of the present senate investigation, to place a stumbling block in the way of merchant shipping advance in this country would be a serious mistake. It has been charged that three American shipbuilding companies employed William B. Shearer to lobby at the Geneva naval limitation conference in 1927 and to seek in various ways to create an ill feeling between this country and Britain to the end that there should be no agreement at the conference. If they did so, they should be censured in the strongest terms. The law, perhaps, can not reach them. Public opinion doubtless will do so. The American people will back an agreement of limitation of naval armament, provided the agreement includes parity in naval strength with Great Britain. They will not agree to less. But the charge against Shearer and the shipbuilders is to the effect that they sought to prevent any agreement at all, with or without such parity.

Whatever comes of the present senate inquiry, it will be devoutly hoped by Americans who have American interests at heart that it will not retard the development of the merchant marine.—Washington Star.

MISS COSTELLO
AT AMERICAN

Dolores Costello, beautiful Warner screen star, recently returned to Hollywood after a romantic honeymoon with her husband, John Barrymore, is to be seen at the American theater on Monday as the star of her latest Warner Bros. all-talking Vitaphone production, "Hearts in Exile," in which she plays the role of a Russian peasant girl whose heart leads her into devious paths. The strange events which follow her marriage to a Russian nobleman make of this one of the most absorbingly dramatic pictures yet shown on the audible screen. This is the picture Miss Costello made immediately after her return from her wedding trip.

"GREENE MURDER CASE" AT STATE

"The Three Musketeers" of murder mystery pictures will be seen again at the State theater on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday when "The Greene Murder Case" is shown there. This amazing trio is William Powell, E. H. Calvert and Eugene Pallette, the same who so successfully cleared up the mystery in "The Canary Murder Case."

Powell is the super-detective who applies the methods of higher psychology to track down the culprit. Calvert is the district attorney of New York who has confidence in Powell and who gives him carte blanche in his sleuthing operations and Pallette is the practical-minded Sergeant Heath who jumps at conclusions too quickly but who proves, nevertheless, that he is a valuable aide in the operations of the crafty Powell.

These men established their roles in the first S. S. Van Dine murder mystery picture, "The Canary Murder Case." They are confronted with an even more difficult criminal but to crack in the next picture, "The Greene Murder Case," for three persons are killed and the number of suspects is even greater than in their earlier case. With these three celebrities of the screen are fourteen supporting actors everyone of whom has had prolonged stage or movie experience. They are Florence Eldridge, Ulrich Haupt, Jean Arthur, Gertrude Norman, Lowell Drew, Morgan Farley, Brandon Hurst, Augusta Burmeister, Marjorie Harris, Mildred Golden, Mrs. Wilfred Buckland, Helena Phillips, Shep Camp and Chas. E. Evans.

DR. FU MANCHU
MYSTERY DRAMA

Excitement, fast action, suspense—these are the thrilling elements which provide superbly entertaining for those who see Paramount's latest gripping, all-talking mystery drama, "The Mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu," which will open a five-day run at the Ceramic theater Monday.

The famous Sax Rohmer story has thrilled millions all over the world in story form and Paramount has incorporated all the tense, emotion-arousing incidents into a never-to-be-forgotten picture with Warner Oland as the cunning, diabolical villain, Dr. Fu Manchu. Rowland V. Lee, the man who made "The Wolf of Wall Street," has utilized all the absorbing situations of Sax Rohmer to heighten the swiftly-moving effects.

PHILO VANCE solves
another sensational mystery!

The aristocratic and talented Philo Vance again assists the New York Police to solve one of the most puzzling mysteries in the history of the department. Even more sensational than the famous "CANARY MURDER CASE," the mysterious series of murderous attacks on the various members of the socially prominent Greene family have attracted nation wide attention. The devilish ingenuity with which each attack was planned gives evidence of the work of a brilliant and fiendish criminal mind. You'll be excited as never before when you

FLYING SCHOOL

During the past year tremendous progress has been made throughout the United States in raising the general standards of flying schools. No longer must the would-be birdman join the Army or the Navy, or else entrust life and limb to some barnstorming pilot and plane of yesterday's frequently questionable qualifications in order to learn how to fly.

The haphazard individual instruction of yesterday has given way to highly organized institutions of flying training which will undoubtedly go a long way toward providing properly trained operators for America's fastest growing industry.

The Rankin Test Books and the Rankin System of Training, prepared by "Tex" Rankin, the well known famous pilot, is used exclusively at our school. This system is probably the best being taught at the present time. Our Chief Mechanic and Ground Instructor is "Chet" Cooper, a Government Licensed Airplane Mechanic. Mr. Cooper is also a licensed pilot. Mr. Walter Sireley, a Transport Pilot, with years of experience in flying and instructing students, is our Chief Pilot and Flying Instructor. Our equipment is rated as satisfactory to turn out the best of fliers. However we will not "Solo" a student until he can fly safely, regardless of the hours it may take.

Persons contemplating taking up the study of Aviation as an education or profession should enlist at once. Get your lecture and study course far enough along to enable you to take advantage of the superior flying conditions that exist in the winter months. Leave your name at the Chamber of Commerce, Telephone No. 845, Trotters Graage, Tel. 325, or call at the Field and ask for "Chet" Cooper, Chief Mechanic, Walter Sireley, Chief Pilot, or Frank Swaney, Airport Manager. Don't delay as Aviation is going forward by leaps and bounds, not equaled in the history of any industry. A representative will gladly call on you if you will send in your name. No trouble to give you full details and terms.

Fire Prevention Program Planned

Mayor Wallace L. Fogo and Fire Chief Charles Hanlon Warn Against Hazards; Schools Will Conduct Drills.

WELLSVILLE, O., Oct. 5.—City officials and school authorities will take active parts in the municipality's annual fire prevention week observance, beginning Monday.

Mayor Wallace L. Fogo and Fire Chief Charles Hanlon today announced that an extensive clean-up and a course of instruction will be carried on throughout the city during the one-week period.

Mayor Fogo and Chief Hanlon will make personal inspection of business houses and similar establishments in an effort to minimize fire hazards.

Citizens will be asked to keep their property free from rubbish and hazards of a similar nature in order to protect not only their own but their neighbor's properties as well.

Mayor Fogo points out: "It would be to their own advantage for the people to lend their attention and energy to participation, wholeheartedly, in the observance of fire prevention week. Statistics show that approximately 80 percent of all fire loss is due to carelessness and therefore preventable. It is not enough for a mere handful in a community to attempt to curb the tremendous fire losses John Roberts, Danberry avenue.

which not only cause much property damage, but losses in life as well, besides interfering with prosperity and progress."

Emphasis will be placed on fire prevention throughout the public school system, according to an announcement by Superintendent S. E. Daw.

There will be special fire drills in each of the rooms and instructors will instruct the student along the lines of fire prevention methods.

Twin City Club Entertained.

Mrs. Kathryn Fiber entertained members of the Twin City club at her home in Arthur avenue, last night. Dabbias were used in the decorations. The social hours were spent with music and a contest, which was won by Mesdames Maud Laughlin and Florence Packett.

Services in connection with a state-wide Fellowship campaign to be conducted during October by Presbyterian churches will be held at the Oak Ridge Presbyterian church every night next week, starting Monday. The Rev. Curtis France, Tyrell, O., pastor, will preach.

SCHOOLS PLAN STAGE EVENTS

Operetta, Playlet on Fall-Winter Program.

A musical operetta presented during November by high school students under the direction of Don W. Hoover, supervisor of public school music; a three-act play by members of the high school dramatic club under supervision of Miss Edith Ross, teacher of dramatics, as a Christmas week feature; glee club, band and orchestra entertainments as well as art and travel club work combine to provide an attractive extra-curricular program this winter for students of the public schools.

Steps have already been taken, according to Superintendent S. E. Daw, in plans for the operetta and play.

The dramatic clubs will offer the student an opportunity for self expression through play production. Three such clubs have already been organized and the plays they produce will be utilized for assembly programs, Parent-Teacher meetings and for evening fund-raising programs.

The programs offered by the musical organizations likewise will be used for assembly hour and evening gatherings.

More than ordinary interest will be centered in these activities declares Superintendent Daw, which may develop into subjects of as much value to the student as most of his regular school duties.

However, all of these activities will be conducted during an extra period set aside for that purpose so that no interference with the pupils' regular studies may arise.

GRANGE MASTER AT YELLOW CREEK

READ THE REASONS WHY

These Oldsmobile Owners Bought Their Cars

Nowhere is the thorough satisfaction that comes with Oldsmobile ownership more frequently or more definitely expressed than in the thousands of written messages which purchasers of Oldsmobile cars are constantly sending, of their own free will, to the Olds Motor Works.

Read the reasons why these owners bought Oldsmobiles—and their experiences in owning and driving Oldsmobiles.

"I like the pick-up and ease of handling of Oldsmobile—also its many new features. The location of the distributor on top of the engine is convenient. Radiator shutters are an excellent feature. Front end appearance and general good looks of the car appeal to me."

—Kingston, N. Y.

"Oldsmobile has attracted my attention for a long time, due to its constant perfection without radical changes. Its construction is sturdy throughout, and its engine develops a lot of horsepower for its size."

—Newark, Ohio

"My neighbor drove an Oldsmobile 11 years, and the car had a good record all that time. I looked at a new one, thought it the best proportioned car I ever saw, and bought it. I'm glad I did."

—Lebanon, Ohio

"In my opinion, Oldsmobile is a mighty good car for its price. For a small difference it gives an excellent oiling system; smoothly balanced crankshaft; smart appearance; and many other items that cheaper and lighter cars don't give."

—Paris, Ill.

These expressions of owner opinion are typical of thousands of others which tell the same story of brilliant performance, restful travel, and dependable operation.

Oldsmobile owners in your own community will express the same enthusiasm. Ask them yourself what they think of their cars. Then come in and examine Oldsmobile's fine features... and drive the car. The many sound reasons why Oldsmobile owners bought their cars will become more and more apparent to you as you become better acquainted with this fine car of low price.

LODGE HONORS LYDA BROWN

UNCLE POM

By Henry C. Rowland

A sparkling, swift-moving mystery romance

SYNOPSIS.

Domero Penfold, a wealthy American widower, nearing 50, loves travel and visit friends. When story opens he is a guest at a chateau of his sister, Alicia, her husband, the Comte de Maia. He is disturbed by the sight of an intruder—a man in a black costume—who appears on the estate, and stares rudely at him. The man's lovely 29 year daughter, by a first marriage, had been married to the man in America, and says his name is Kirby Colton.

Kirby Colton, handsome scapegrace son of an American bishop, old friend of the Penfold family, calls at the chateau unexpectedly and is invited to spend the night. He, too, has met Maia in America.

The count surprises Uncle Pom, telling him Maia loves him and that the marriage would be a success. Maia overhears them and confirms her father's remarks. Kirby and Seagrave are erstwhile rivals. Knowing the two hate each other, Uncle Pom goes in search of Kirby to avoid a duel. He is attacked from behind, knocked unconscious, and robbed of a belt containing priceless diamonds. That night a prowler in the room tries to choke him, then escapes. Maia suspects Seagrave both attacks—he is always in financial difficulties—but Kirby denies every one by offering alibi for his rival. And he confesses in Uncle Pom that he has not seen Maia, but to borrow $100,000 to save an innocent girl from trouble. Penfold gives him money.

Seagrave calls, and is unabashed. Penfold tells him he is under grave suspicion for assault and battery. He denies the charges, accuses that he intends to marry Maia, and infuriates Penfold by telling he knows something to the discredit, which he will prove as blackmail. Pressed for details, he declares she is involved in a case of murder, and says Colton can confirm the story. He was a witness. Colton explains that Maia did shoot a man in America by accident, but through Seagrave's fault. He challenges the latter to a duel, but agrees with Penfold that this would only bring scandal to Maia's name and the best thing for Kirby do is to clear out at once.

First, however, Kirby makes a position, swearing he fired the shot, in order to forestall more blackmail threats, and surprises Maia by confessing that he has put through a coup with European financiers that will make him rich. He says off the libel on Seagrave's right, hoping to get rid of him, because he feels Maia has been cause to fear him since she seduced Kirby not to clear his rival's name with the alibi.

That night Uncle Pom is disturbed by a noise downstairs and, investigating, finds that the count's words have disappeared. He suspects a duel and begins to search grounds. He hears Maia and Kirby talking in the moonlight and covers they are in love. He reveals Maia from the engagement and then tries to persuade Kirby to go on with the duel.

INSTALLMENT XXIV.

Mr. Penfold felt a sudden panic. A quick mind fastened immediately on what such an encounter meant, however it turned out. He perceived also that Seagrave, an unscrupulous opportunist, had failed to grasp it. If, in addition to what had already happened, Maia was now to be caught in the coils of such an irregular duel, then she must be hopelessly compromised. This evidently had seduced Kirby in his hatred of Seagrave and his eagerness to get at him. Kirby stepped forward and just the words at Seagrave. "Help you, sir?" he said. "There's choice."

Without a second's hesitation Seagrave took one of the swords, flung it out of the scabbard and he threw aside, stepped back and bent slightly the long, naked blade in his hand. "Good steel," he said. "I've always loved it."

Kirby also drew his blade and lunged aside the scabbard. "Come up on to the level ground," said, and mounted the epaulet, Seagrave following in a rush.

Mr. Penfold, appalled at the suddenness with which this challenge had been thrown and accepted with an instant arming of the combatants, was at a total loss. His protest ignored, there was nothing he could do. He was astonished at Maia's stony silence. She stared him with an expression that he did not interpret. Then she moved and started up the bank. At the same moment the man in a boat, to whom the combatants were plainly visible at his greater distance from them, leaped out and hurried up the cales as fast as wet, slippery stones made possible. "What's all about, sir?" he asked.

A silly fight—we must stop it. I'll my best, but they went at like a pair of game cocks," he asked as he hurried along.

They reached the top, where a beau was presented. Under different circumstances, this could have failed to whom Mr. Penfold's esthetic soul with stirring, though no artificial setting, and possibly have equalled it. The cavernous apertures and an ant stones washed whitely in sunlight. Some great gnarled trees brooded over it like old crests still tenacious of life hovering over the skeleton of something loved. To the right the calm water of the inlet lay like a reflecting mirror slightly fogged. There was not the usual glare to the abundant lunar light that was used by the soft haze, rendered atmospheric, describing detail and the same time disgusting it.

In the middle of the terrace, in its carpet of smooth turf the two men were fencing with a wariness and a classic form that showed even to Mr. Penfold's limited experience a knowledge of their weapons that he had not suspected. Here, he perceived immediately, were no bungling amateurs, but men who at some time or other had passed their preliminary training of the sword. He remembered then what hitherto had not occurred to him, a remark, half-proud, half-wistful made one day by the bishop just before Kirby's dismissal from the naval academy. If only Kirby's scholastic efforts were on a par with his athletic ones, particularly fencing—he won the tournament not long ago."

But even that much swordsmanship would be about enough to get a young man killed nicely and correctly within the code by the average continental who might pursue fencing for exercise and pleasure as an American plays golf. Mr. Penfold had taken lessons and watched tournaments enough to be an able critic if not performer. He perceived immediately that while the two were well matched in skill, Seagrave was the more finished fencer; at the same time he became aware of what was more important and reassuring, that Seagrave's restrained sword play was centered on the effort to disarm Kirby and not to kill him, as twice he passed the opportunity for a fatal thrust.

In spite of this, Mr. Penfold felt one could not be sure about such a man as Seagrave and that if he were to find himself in pressing danger from Kirby's bitter offensive he would no longer delay the fatal coup. It was not mercy or compensation or fear that deterred him, Mr. Penfold thought, but British swank and a desire to play before Maia the sportsmanly and generous role.

The difficulty now was to stop the duel without risk of fouling the play. The adversaries would pay no attention to anything said, and the attempt at physical interference might be fatal, distracting to one or the other, and so lead to a reckless or unlawful passage of arms. Mr. Penfold looked helplessly at Maia, who was watching tensely, silent and fascinated. Seagrave's man showed no disposition to interfere.

The antagonists were going about the business not as one might have expected of a grudge event, but warily, more as would be the case in the finals of a tournament where the object was to score in points. This also was a relief to Mr. Penfold, because of the greater possibility that either might receive a disabling wound of the sword arm instead of a fatal one.

As he knew that Kirby's whole object in forcing the affair on Seagrave had been to kill him and so to silence his mouth forever, Mr. Penfold now found himself in the curious position of hoping Seagrave would prove himself the better man, the more untiring. In this case it was to be hoped that, finding himself presently Kirby's master, he would be content to run him through the wrist or arm, then refuse to go further with the affair.

This was precisely what soon began to manifest itself. Kirby's first brilliancy of attack was not long sustained. He was obviously tiring. There is no form of exercise that demands for its finesse of technique a greater resistance to fatigue than sword play. The strain on the wrist, the deltoid muscles that holds the arm in rigid extension soon becomes excruciating. The muscles of the partly flexed knee and thigh grow cramped. Kirby, of recent years, had been too self-indulgent. Wine and spirits and cigars and irregular hours began to make its pressure felt.

Kirby had all the fire of his race and the moral force of will to overcome his softened muscles, but Seagrave's were no doubt like the wire rigging of his schooner. The chances were that he sailed always short handed through scanty funds to meet a pay roll, and so was required to lend a hand with sheets and halyards and rigging and at the wheel. This sort of thing would tire his grip about as much as might the milking of a cow or two tire the grip of a dairyman.

Mr. Penfold thought. He remembered what Kirby had told him of Seagrave's having been a student at Heidelberg and that he had been compelled to get out of Germany as the result of a fatal duel. This in itself was enough to announce him an expert swordsman.

Kirby must have been aware of this and, therefore, his insistence to crowd a quarrel with his favorite weapon on the man he hated was downright folly. But that also was entirely consistent with Kirby's nature. He was willing to trust to his own former amateur skill backed by animosity and the daredevil spirit in him of his hotblooded Virginia forebears. It now became evident that Kirby's play was growing erratic, then blurred. He was tiring to a point where his moral force no longer availed to drive his cramped, trembling muscles with good coordination. The end came suddenly.

YOUTH RULES IN "GOODNEWS"

Collegiate Musical Comedy Here on Oct. 10.

Youth is the important thing in the collegiate musical comedy.

"Good News," which will be the super attraction at the Ceramic theater on Thursday, Oct. 10. There is youth in the book, the lyrics, the score and more youth in the interpretation of them; youth and pep and jazz.

The show is built around the vicissitudes of the Tait college football team. The book and lyrics of "Good News" are by Laurence Schwab, R. G. De Sylva and Lew Brown, with music by Ray Henderson and the musical and dancing numbers staged by Bobby Connolly. In the dozen or more song hits of the show are five which have already attained wide popularity—"The Varsity Drag," "Lucky in Love," "Just Imagine," "Good News" and "The Best Things in Life are Free."

"Good News" has played long engagements at the Chanin theater, New York; the Selwyn theater, Chicago; the Majestic theater, Boston; the Mayan theater, Los Angeles; the Curran theater, San Francisco and the New Carleton theater in London, England. Upwards of 100 people are used in the presentation.

Warehouses having a total capacity of 650,000,000 pounds of coffee have been built in Santos, Brazil.

You can't stop tears because people are human!

The doctor gives you encouragement and consolation--your friends and neighbors sympathize with you--but they cannot wipe out the sorrow that a frightful accident sows in the hearts of those who love you. Additional expenses are incurred, "hard earned" savings are oft-times insufficient for the daily necessities. You can't stop tears, because people are human; but you can allay expenses by preparing for such an emergency. Here is a

VALLEY A. C. MITT PROGRAM COMPLETED

Edwards To Face Big Test

Chester Welter to Tackle Harry Devore In Semi-final.

WATCHING Freddy Edwards, the Chester welterweight, win, has been more or less of a routine pastime for district boxing fans during the last two indoor seasons.

A defeat for the Edwards would be a novelty, for him and for his followers, in view of his unbroken string of victories, although not an oddity or impossible occurrence because even the best back busters the business are apt to take a drubbing now and then.

Edwards is a friendly chap, clean-cut and well liked and certainly there are few, if any, who would deliberately demand to see him walloped.

Nevertheless, there is always the element of uncertainty in any scrap between two pretty evenly matched sluggers and it lends itself attractively to the coming engagement between Edwards and Harry Devore, of Huntington, W. Va., who are scheduled to travel six rounds in the semi-final at the Valley A. C., Wellsville, next Thursday night.

Gizzy, Kaeth in Main Event.
The Edwards-Devore battle will precede the main event of eight rounds between Battling Gizzy, Washington's Harry Greb, and Frankie Kaeth, golden gloves tournament winner, Cleveland.

Edwards has been "on the shelf," so far as actual battling is concerned, virtually all summer or since his last appearance at the Valley A. C., last spring, as a result of illness.

He got back into harness for his Junction park debut and warmed up on Tommy Chaplow of Sebring, from whom he won in the third round on a technical knockout. He is confident he has the old wallop back again and ready for unceremonious when the Devore chin makes its appearance in the immediate territory.

DeVore has had something like 50 scraps in a period of two years and has won probably 50 per cent of them by knockouts, which would seem to indicate that Edwards' own sleep producing punch will be matched by that of the other West Virginian.

DeVore and Mickey Solomon fought a couple of months ago in Palermo bowl in Sebring. It was close enough but the ringsiders gave Solomon the decision.

Has Mixed With Good Ones.
DeVore has mixed with Paul Delaney, Mickey Feder, Joe O'Malley, Willie Petrone, Nig Blair, Tony Burns, who is a pretty good fighter, Shifty Dando, Danny Huff, Eddie Moore, among the good ones, and a host of others of lesser caliber.

The DeVore-Edwards, Gizzy-Kaeth bouts will be the headline events in what is to be the opening show of the season at the Valley A. C., in the Wellsville city hall auditorium.

But they'll have to show more than an ordinary measure of action to steal the spotlight from the two four-round preliminaries, because Matchmaker Ray Foutts believes he has a pair of naturals on the front end of the bill.

Poison Pizzone, Wellsville favorite, and Eddie Loos of East Liverpool, bantamweights, will open the program, followed by Joey Long, Alliance school boy and Joe Collins, Ambridge, Pa., in another round.

The fights are scheduled for 8:30. Reserved seat tickets have been placed on sale at Frank Diamond's, with the customary scale prevailing.

Schultz Tops Loop Swatters; Pollock Has High Slab Mark

Earl Springer, Chester Can Qualify as Most Valuable Player in Inter-City League Season.

CONTINUING his slugging prodigies into and through the entire second half, Eddie Schultz, K. T. K. first sacker, finished the season as the leading hitter in the Inter-City baseball league with an average of .481.

Schultz clubbed at a wicked rate in the first half of the campaign, swatting at a better than 600 clip although he was in less than half of the engagements in which the Katies participated. His slugging dropped off to some extent in the second half, but he still managed to punch out enough bingles to keep his name at the top of the list.

And Kent McConnell, K. T. K. outfielder, who was fairly well up toward the top in the first half, climbed even further in the second and, in 23 games, clubbed out an average of .463. McConnell was not a flashy clubber, but was consistent with his bingles.

Campbell, of Chester, who led the hitters the first half, dropped into third place for the season with, however, a very respectable figure of .417, just one point ahead of Bill Merchant of Newell, who, however, played in only seven games as a result of injuries he sustained prior to the opening of the season.

Ray Pollock, Newell, finished with an even .400 in 18 games. Eddie Bayley led the loop in times at bat, 93, being chalked up to his credit and he socked out 32 hits for a .344 mark, and while this figure does not give him a place at the top of the loop, it does prove his all around day-by-day consistency with the willow. His 32 hits, by the way, are two more than any other hitter got.

Bayley collected 24 singles, five doubles, two triples and a home run.

Bill Talbot, Wellsville first baseman, slammed the most singles, 26 of them, and, altogether, contributed 29 blows to the Wellsville attack, three being doubles, and hit at a .367 clip.

In the two-bagger department, however, George Wagner, who topped swatters on the Wellsville club, led with 10. He finished out title. Pat had 156 in the bag on September 23.

If these big boys get started on the same day, speed ball pitching may become one of the series' greatest attractions.

Give either, or both, one of these dark, cloudy October afternoons and there may be a day off for the remainder of the team.

Bishop Subs Beat Regulars.
DELAWARE, O.—Ohio Wesleyan's second grid team looked to better advantage in Thursday's practice than did the first eleven, the seconds scoring three touchdowns to one for the varsity during a scrimmage.

Playing of Harlow Slater, Delaware tackle, was one of the bright spots of the day. He was substituting for Gordon Kraft, regular tackle, who is injured.

The team had a light workout Friday in preparation for the Heidelberg game here today.

Denison Regulars Take It Easy
GRANVILLE, O.—Denison's varsity football squad loafed through rain in signal practice while the second and third teams scrimmaged.

Coach Rupp watched the scrimmage closely, for he is looking for new talent to add to his regular line-up.

He is principally in need of more weight for the forward wall and is trying to develop green material. Al Wright, who suffered a broken arm in yesterday's scrimmage, was discharged from the university hospital today. He will be out for the balance of the season.

Little Giants to Watch Tiffin Game
PREMONT, O.—Without a football game today, Fremont High's football squad probably will be taken to Tiffin by Coach Bob Oldfather to see Sandusky High open the Little Big Seven League season in a game with Tiffin Columbian.

PANTHERS PRIME FOR OLD FOES

Battle Mountaineer Gridders Oct. 12.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 5.—Pittsburgh football fans who will witness Jock Sutherland's Panthers in their first real home test of the season against West Virginia at the Stadium Saturday, October 12, will see a second edition of the 1927 Panthers.

In an effort to avenge the defeat suffered at the hands of West Virginia last year Sutherland is going to open up his attack. Although the Mountaineers have lost a game this season, it doesn't mean anything as the same state of affairs existed last year. The same team that beat the Panthers is practically intact this year and have the advantage of a year's experience.

The Pitt lineup will be somewhat stronger this year. Early games have proven that the sophomores are ready to take the place of the three veterans the Chester nine registered to win the season's championship in the final series with K. T. K. In addition, he batted well above the .300 mark.

Don Stoffel was of similar value to the Katies in the first half when the Potters lost the pennant by a single defeat.

Springer was the hardest working hurler, toiling in 114 1/3 innings.

The pitching averages for the season follow:

Dr. Sutherland expects to have a veteran backfield of Parkinson, Williams, Unsua and Baker in shape for this game. It these boys start, Western Conference fans will have the chance to see the best backfield in the East, if not the country in action.

The game will also furnish the fans with a battle between the two outstanding candidates for all-American end, Joe Donchess, Panthers' terminal, and Wesley Mesler, Ohio State end, are both from Youngstown, and both received all-American places last season.

$50 in Cash Awards for Guessing Pictures

This is one of a series of pictures of East Liverpool Merchants or East Liverpool Business Places, one of which will appear in The East Liverpool Review each week.

FIRST $25 AWARD
$15 Second Award
$10 Third Award

An Interesting Contest For the Entire Family

This "Guess Who" contest is being sponsored by the various business houses whose advertisements appear on this page, and you will find it an interesting way of renewing old acquaintances as well as making new ones.

Each week you will find a different picture until there has been a total of 25, and under each picture are three questions to be answered by each contestant. Each picture will be numbered and in order to compete in this contest it will be necessary for you to identify each one, starting with number one and continuing up to and including number 25.

The picture will consist of various business men or business women store managers and store fronts, but each picture will be some part of one of the advertisers' business. There will be only one picture for each of the advertisers whose name appears on this page. Many of the pictures you will recognize easily; others you may be in doubt about, but all you need to do to identify them is to take the picture each week to any of the business places whose advertisement appears here and ask any of the employees if the picture represents their place of business.

Any advertiser on the page will be glad to answer your question. Start in right away. See if you can identify the picture that appears today.

RULES OF CONTEST

- 1—Read the advertisements on this page carefully. Decide which one the picture represents, and fill in the blank lines.
- 2—Save the pictures and your answers until you have a complete set of 25.
- 3—When you have the complete set, write a letter stating why you deal at the various business houses who are represented on this page, either as a group or individuals.
- 4—Each set of pictures must be accompanied by a letter, but each contestant may submit more than one letter.
- 5—Neatness of letter and correctness of answers will be the deciding factor in deciding the winners.
- 6—Letters must not contain more than 250 words and paper should be written on one side only.
- 7—Letters must be written in long hand.
- 8—No merchant represented on this page, their employees or members of their families are eligible to compete in this contest.
- 9—No employee of The East Liverpool Review or members of their families are eligible to compete in this contest.
- 10—When you have a complete set of pictures, bring or mail them together with your letter, to the "Guess Who Editor," The East Liverpool Review.
- 11—The decision of the "Guess Who Editor" as the winners will be final.
- 12—Winners of the contest will be announced on this page as soon as possible after the close of the contest.
- 13—Back numbers of the paper may be obtained at The East Liverpool Review office.
- 14—In case no complete set of answers is returned, the ones sending in the nearest complete sets and best letters will be decided as winners.

Candies Are of the Party

For those dull moments when conversation lags and things slow up a bit—pass the candy! Candy is a great energy producer—Remember the bars of chocolate the soldiers munched during the war to give them pep? Well, if an ordinary bar of chocolate can do that—imagine the effect of a box of gorgeous bon bons and butter creams.
Never a dull moment! And so inexpensive here.

His eyes were all seeing!

"The Mysterious"

DR. FU MANCHU

Woe to those that cross his path... his revenge is sure, swift and silent!

Everywhere watching, waiting, planning, was that most dangerous of human beings... a man turned maniac! He had defied the world's greatest detectives; for years, his horrible plans went on unchecked! A thousand silent, deadly slaves were at his command! Strange and curious beasts did his bidding! All the knowledge of the mysterious Orient was his... its secrets, its poisons... its horrible method of imposing will on will!

Even now he holds a beautiful girl beneath his hypnotic sway while her sweetheart and Scotland Yard's finest detectives seek to rescue her—to destroy his terrible power!

SEE and HEAR this desperate thrilling conflict. This exciting struggle between unseen influence and love... nothing like it has ever been screened.

Warner Oland, as the mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu the menacing, ominous potentate, sinister, threatening thousands.

This is a super-thriller, if there ever was one! You literally feel the subtle Oriental influence of the sinister Mastermind. You shiver with fear, and quiver with sympathy for the young lovers in their desperate struggle. If you never SEE or HEAR another picture, don't miss this
